Guests of Mrs. P. K. Gordon last week were Mrs. Chas Wheeler Jr. of San Francisco and Miss Miriam Winter of Iowa.

Many Carmelites visited the various warships of the fleet, and some of our young ladies went aboard the same ship more than once. Oh those Gobs!

The Websters have returned to Fresno. On their way home they visited in Berkeley for a few days.

Garnet Holme and Russ Stimmel have gone to San Francisco. Much theatrical work awaits them in the bay cities. Phil Whiting will be here a few days more.

Redwood City folks registered at Pine Inn recently were Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Stansbury and daughter and Miss Dorothy Bresse.

You are protected by a $10,000 accident bond when you travel in Carmel Garage Stages We are responsible.—C. O. Goold.

For September and October nearly as many cottages are occupied here as during July and August. This has been Carmel's most prosperous season both in renting and property sales.

Mrs. Charles Josselyn and her three sons arrived here a few days ago from Pasadena. They are in Carmel for a good long stay.

Alice and Carmelita Pepper paid their grandmother a week end visit at Marina, where Mrs. Underwood is now making her home.

We sell Beaver Board—Carmel News Co., L. S. Slevin, Manager.

It was a big undertaking to carry the two hundred and twenty sailors over from Monterey and back last Friday, and except for the splendid cooperation of visiting car owners the job could not have been accomplished. We got no assistance from Monterey.

County Tax Rate

Based upon figures prepared by County Auditor A. G. Winckler, the Supervisors have established the county tax rate for the current fiscal year. Outside incorporated cities the rate is $2.36; inside incorporated cities it is $1.96. This rate is 44 cents higher than last year. The increased rate is due to the higher cost of meeting current expenses, an addition of 3 cents for school purposes, and added interest for state highway bonds.

CHAPTER XI.

"You Have Overplayed Your Hand."

"I am afraid that I have been indiscreet, Senor Stanway." Torre, with his old smile charged now with something of mockery and much of triumph, held out a little piece of white paper to Stanway, who, key in hand, had just come from Pedro on his way to the master's room. "But I think that I can plead an altogether unusual position as my excuse. You will pardon me, senor?"

Stanway took the paper, guessing what it was, and read it swiftly:

Mi Querido Senor Billy:

To save papa grande, to save me from all that is horrible, there is no way but to do what Torre asks. In grandfather's room, behind the great mahogany bed, there is a painting on the wall.

There is a spot in the woodwork, three feet from the floor, ten from the northwest corner, where you must press with your finger. It will disclose the banco. Give him the money—for the sake of Your Teresa.

"You will pardon my having read it?" again smilingly from Torre.

"Where did you get this thing?" cried Stanway.

Torre pointed to the window, whose panes he had broken just before three o'clock.

"There. On the floor. Some one threw it in on the floor while you were running so giddily across the border. You see this is very well planned, senor. Is it not? Even my lieutenants—"

"If I do not do as she asks?" cut in Stanway, his low-lidded eyes sharp upon Torre's.

Torre shrugged.

"Who knows? Perhaps they will take the trouble to find a priest to give the senorita in holy matrimony to—"

In sudden rage Stanway, his nerves jangling, his rage reddening his face, leaped at the man, and as he leaped struck, struck hard—his hard, clenched fist smashing into the evil smile, cutting the lips so that the blood ran from them, sending Torre reeling backward across the room.

"Shut up!" he cried hoarsely. "You mention the senorita once more and—"

His teeth closed with a little ominous click. Torre, wiping the blood from his lips, glared at him with a boundless, almost speechless, rage.

"Coward!" he sneered. "Since I am a prisoner, with a half dozen men ready to spring upon me, you attack me—"

"Gaucho!" called Stanway.

"Si, senor!" Gaucho's brown face brightening, his eyes looking happier than they had looked for two days.

"Do not interfere. Do not let your men take hand, no matter what happens." Then he swung about upon Torre. "Do you want to finish it now?" he said curtly.

But Torre was once more himself, smiling, at ease, only a fierce hatred in his eyes.

"Gracias, senor!" he returned. "I shall merely make you pay for that blow in my own way. And now I ask another ten thousand dollars as ransom for the old man and the girl. Ten thousand dollars for a blow, senor! Do you care to strike again?"

Stanway shrugged.

"You have overplayed your hand, Torre," he said quietly. "This note from the senorita makes me sure of what I was beginning to suspect. Gaucho, come with me."

With no further word, leaving Torre's mystified face looking after him, he went out, Gaucho at his heels.

"Gaucho," he said, speaking swiftly from beyond the closed door, "I want you to come to the master's room. Bring some men with you—six, ten—I don't know how many we shall need. Let two of them bring axes. Let all carry side arms. Bring the picked men, Gaucho; the hardest men on the rancho. I think that there is going to be fighting this time."

"The master?" cried Gaucho. "The senorita? You know—"

"I know nothing. But I think—that they have never for a second left the house! Hurry, Gaucho!"

And Gaucho hurried, his own face as mystified as Torre's. Stanway went quickly to the bedroom.

"Somewhere in these great thick walls there is a passageway," he whispered to himself. "It runs from this room throughout the house and to the east wing where Teresa's rooms are.

"Somewhere, down below perhaps, there is a room, a dungeon. I think that it is just under the drawing room; I think that that is where De la Guerra is; that many of the things which Torre said were meant to be heard by the old man that they might taunt and mock him; I think that Torre's men down there heard the crashing glass,

"And De la Guerra was never to be taken from the house?"

"No. It seemed safer this way."

"There was every hazard in it—"

"Simply because you happened to be at the rancho," returned Dempton with a little flash of bitterness. "Had there been only the senorita, it would have been easy to have worked on her love for her grandfather."

"And Torre?"

"Killed a man a month ago in San Antonio—is running away from the gallows. With the money he expected to make from this he could buy the silence of the one man who can identify him as the murderer. It was his only chance."

"Juarez?"

"Is actually a rebel captain. Torre was to give him his share. Then Torre was to have a commission in the rebel army. He looked to distinguished favors when the rebels fought their way into power. Now—"

"Now what?"

"Now, if he goes into Mexico the rebels will shoot him as a traitor. That was another chance he was taking. He was to give five thousand dollars to the cause. For that they let him have Juarez and the other men. He was to give his life if he lied to them, if he tricked them or—if he failed. He could never get across the border without their spies finding him."

Then Gaucho returned with word that everything was ready. Vidal, at Stanway's command, bound Dempton securely once more, hand and foot, and tossed him to the bed as one might toss a sack of wheat. The men had kicked off their shoes and boots, and stood eager and expectant.

Stanway, his revolver in his right hand, pressed with the left thumb upon the spot in the paneling where another thumb had pressed.

There was a little click, and the panel slid back into the wall, showing a narrow doorway, a narrow passageway beyond. There were candles burning there, their steady flames casting a clear, yellow light.

"Each man keep three feet behind the man in front of him," whispered Stanway. "We must have room. Vidal, Gaucho, come just behind me."

He stepped through the door into the two-foot wide hallway which ran along inside the wall, its trend eastward and downward. There were no steps, but the slant led quickly under the foundations of the great adobe building.

Stanway passed the first candle set into a niche in the rough wood wall. Already he felt that he must be below the level of the floor when he came to the second candle. Here the flame was less steady, a little breath of air playing with it.

He turned a corner, the hallway opened up suddenly into a small, rough-walled room some eight or ten feet square.

Across the room was a heavy barred door; in the center of the floor was a couch, and on the couch a man was lying upon his back, his hands clasped behind his head, a cigarette between his lips.

Stanway was in the room, noiseless in his stockinged feet, Vidal at his side. Gaucho was entering when the man heard, turned quickly, and saw them. He sprang to his feet.

But the cry rising to his lips was choked back in his throat by the hard hands of the rancher. The struggle ended almost as soon as it began.

But some sound of the brief scuffle must have penetrated to the other side of the oak door. Before the rest of the vaqueros could crowd into the little room the door had been jerked open, a dark, bearded face showed at the crack.

There was a snarled curse, the door slammed shut, and there was the sound of other bars lifted across it upon the other side.

"Your axes!" shouted Stanway, leaping to one side to make room. "Vidal, you take one. Get it down, quick!"

But, even to the attack of the great arms of Vidal and another of the cowboys, the great thick door stood defiant as the swift seconds fled by. From the other side came the sound of quick, snapping voices, of scurrying feet, the sound of a cry which tingled through Stanway's blood and sent Vidal with the words which went with it. "I think that we are going to find De la Guerra and Teresa there."

He studied the walls.

There was nothing to hint at a secret door.

He moved out the bed, found the spot which Teresa's note told of, set his thumb to it, and saw a panel drop down, sheetwise, showing a great iron safe set in the wall. The safe was locked, the key missing. But he knew that he had found De la Guerra's bank. He closed the panel swiftly as Gaucho and his men came to the door.

"Que es, senor?" Gaucho asked quickly. And the black eyes of the dark-faced men thronging behind him—eager, expectant—told as well as words that Gaucho had whispered to his men that the Americano had a plan, that hope lay behind it.

"Come in, Gaucho. Shut the door. How many men?"

They entered as he spoke. He counted as the last man closed the door behind him.

"Ten, senor. Five more are coming."

"And"—sternly—"you can vouch for them, for all of them? You can trust every man to the uttermost, Gaucho?"

"To the uttermost, senor," as sternly. "To the death in the service of the master and"—his voice breaking a little—"the senorita."

"And the other five?"

"The same."

"Good! This is my plan. Come close, all of you."

He addressed them in Spanish, speaking swiftly, his voice lowered so that the men must crane their necks and lean forward to hear. He told them of his hope that those they sought had never been taken out of the hacienda.

"Now," he ended, "there is no doubt a passageway running from here to the senorita's rooms. If we find this end of it and attack they may escape at the other end. So we must be ready.

"Gaucho, send two men into the senorita's rooms. Let them be ready, armed and watchful. Send two more to the stairway. Let Torre and Juarez be bound and watched over by one man only, a man whom you can trust and who will blow their brains out before he lets them escape."

"Let every other man in the house be armed and ready. Then—"

"Then, senor?" eagerly.

"Then"—with quiet determination—"we shall find where the passage is if we have to tear down the walls. Hurry, Gaucho!"

Gaucho ran upon his errand, calling by name the men he wished to go with him. Stanway, bidding those with him to be very silent, not knowing what means the men he sought might have of overhearing what happened in the room, began a silent search for some sign of a passageway in the thick walls.

And now at last fate and the quick eyes of a vaquero aided him. There was a little scratch on the redwood of the wall just opposite the door through which they had entered, a fresh white scratch. It was Mendoz, a young Mexican, who saw it; it was Mendoz who found a mark of a greasy thumb upon the same panel, some four feet from the floor.

"Aqui, esta!" he muttered. "Senor, look!"

Stanway's heart beat wildly when he saw what Mendoz had found.

"The door of the passageway!" he whispered. "Sh! Be still! Even take off your boots, companeros. We are going to give them no warning. But first, Mendoz, bring Dempton here, quick! I think he is going to talk now."

Mendoz hurried, and presently came back, he and the immense Vidal, walking at Dempton's right and left.

"Dempton," whispered Stanway, meeting him, "make no sound. If he cries out"—to Vidal and Mendoz—"if he makes a sound choke the life out of him. Do you understand, Dempton?"

Dempton's pale lips opened, but no words came forth. A little shiver ran through him.

"We have learned everything, Dempton," Stanway went on in his whispering voice. "Even to the hiding-place. There is the door." He pointed to the panel with the thumb-print upon it. "I think that we can send you to the penitentiary for a long time with very little trouble. Will you talk now, Dempton?"

Dempton hesitated, denial upon his lips, growing fear in his eyes.

"What do you want to know?" he asked in a shaking whisper. "I— Oh, my God! This has gone further already—"

"I want to know how many men are with Torre in this thing?"

"There—there is Juarez—and—and—"

"Don't be a fool as well as a coward, Dempton!" muttered Stanway. "You are such a petty little thief that nobody is going to want to prosecute you if you help us now. There is Torre and Juarez and you. Who else?"

"I—I don't know." Dempton licked his dry lips and swayed between Vidal and Mendoz as though he were going to fall. "Oh, I was a fool—"

"Granted. But tell what you know while you have the chance. How many?"

"Seven, I think," chattered Dempton. "Seven besides Torre and Juarez. Five inside, two outside with the horses."

"Outside?" queried Stanway.

"Yes. To ride away, leading extra horses, so that it would sound like a number of riders were racing for the border. To leave the trail which you followed south. The other five to do the work inside."

redoubled vigor to the onslaught on the door.

At last the door fell. Stanway and Vidal, side by side, leaped through. There was another hall, wider than the first, shorter. At the end of the hall another door, studded with nails, barred upon the farther side.

Evidently there had been a second guard here, evidently in the next room were the prisoners.

"De la Guerra!" shouted Stanway. "Teresa!"

There was no answer, no sound.

"Smash in the door!" he yelled. "Quick! Gaucho, go upstairs. Tell them what has happened. Let them watch out. Order the first man who appears to be shot if he makes a move toward a gun or to escape. Run, Gaucho!"

Before Gaucho had turned to obey, before Stanway's echoing words sank into silence, there came from beyond the door an exclamation of terror, a sudden cry, and the reverberating crack of a revolver.

Then brief silence again for a moment which seemed long, and the blows of two axes, ripping and tearing at the oak planks of the door.

Our Entertainment

When it became definitely known that the great fleet would anchor in Monterey bay for a week a committee of Peninsula citizens got together to plan a program for the event.

Money was needed. Carmel was set down for $500 to be paid over to this committee. The Carmel members did not like this, and said so. They preferred that Carmel have an affair of its own backed by the committee, and we got away with it in good style, notwithstanding the threat to cancel our affair if we didn't "come through."

Our affair for the boys cost in excess of $500.

ORDINANCE NO. 28

AN ORDINANCE LEVYING MUNICIPAL TAXES FOR THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA FOR THE FISCAL YEAR BEGINNING JANUARY 1, 1919.

THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY THE-SEA DO ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS,

Section I. That the rate of taxation for the fiscal year beginning January 1st, 1919, for general municipal purposes for the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, upon real and personal property in the said City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, County of Monterey, State of California, shall be, and the same is hereby fixed as follows:

For general municipal expenses One Hundred (100) cents on each One Hundred ($100.00) Dollars of assessed valuation of taxable property in said City.

Section 2. That the above rate of taxation apportioned and segregated as above set forth is hereby levied for the fiscal year beginning January 1st, 1919; that the above rate is required and will be sufficient to raise the amounts estimated to be required for the present fiscal year less the amounts estimated to be received from fines, licenses, and other sources of revenue.

Section 3. This Ordinance is hereby declared urgent and necessary to carry on the government of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, and is therefore necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health and safety, and shall take effect on its final passage and approval.

ADOPTED by the Board of Trustees of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea this 2nd day of September A. D. 1919. by the following vote:

Ocean Avenue Again

The monthly meeting of the City Trustees was held on Tuesevening, with Mrs. deSabla acting as clerk. A petition, signed by owners of 1890 of the 3200 feet of Ocean Avenue frontage, was presented by R. G. Leidig. It asks the trustees to improve that street with a roadway not to exceed $3 in cost per front foot on the widest portion of the street and $2 on the narrowest. The petition was filed for future action.

In accordance with former action the board passed and adopted a resolution providing for a concrete roadway on Ocean Avenue. The same will be published and notice of improvement posted. Protests will be heard October 7.

The ordinance establishing the tax rate, which is $1 on each $100 of valuation, will be published also.

Trustee Kibbler reported local health conditions good.

Carmel Knows How

Carmel-by-the-Sea, Cal.
Friday, Aug. 29, 1919

With two hundred boys of the Pacific Fleet, I was the supper and theatre guest this evening of the residents of this beautiful city of artists and literary people,

Two hundred and twenty postcards, stamped, and bearing the above message and a picture of the beach and bath house, were distributed to the sailors who were the city's guests last Friday. These cards, signed and addressed, were sent into twenty-eight States, not including California, as follows:

New Jersey, Georgia, Colorado, New York, Virginia, Tennessee, Massachusetts, Maryland, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Connecticut, Illinois, Ohio, Kansas, Iowa, Kentucky, Indiana, Texas, Pennsylvania, Arkansas, New Mexico, Wisconsin, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Missouri, Washington, Nevada and New Hampshire.

The heading on this article is a paraphrase of what former President Taft said of San Francisco. We do not say it; the boys who were here said it over and over again in many ways.

Carmel's wonderful community spirit was on tap in abundance for this occasion. The committee in charge had everything it needed—money, food, transportation, labor, entertainment—and then some.

The Arts and Crafts Club, which took the initiative in getting up the affair, desires to thank all who in any way contributed to its success.

We tell the truth in our messages to the buying public—Holman's.

IN THE MATTER OF THE ESTABLISHMENT OF A MODEL OF THE MISSION BUILDING AND OUTBUILDINGS KNOWN AS SAN CARLOS BORROMEO MISSION, COMMONLY CALLED "CARMEL MISSION," NEAR CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA, MONTEREY COUNTY, CALIFORNIA.

Upon reading and filing the petition of A. P. Fraser, Mrs. E. K. deSabla, C. J. Arne, Peter Taylor and Wm. T. Kibbler petitioning this Commission to fix a time and place for a hearing in order to and that this Commission then and there investigate and acquire information as to the physical characteristics of the Mission building and outbuildings known as San Carlos Borromeo Mission, commonly known as Carmel Mission, near the town of Carmel-by-the-Sea, Monterey County, California, and to give notice of said hearing and the time and place fixed therefor, as required in an Act entitled "An act to amend section four of an act entitled 'An act to create a commission for the purpose of making a survey of local historical material in the State of California; defining the power and duties of said commission; and making an appropriation therefor,'" approved May 17, 1917, and good cause appearing therefor.

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that Friday, October 31, 1919, at the hour of 10 o'clock A. M. and the audience room of the Town Hall of the town of Carmel-by-the-Sea, Monterey County, California, situated on the Northwest corner of Ocean Avenue and San Carlos Street in said town of Carmel-by-the-Sea, Monterey County, be and the same hereby are fixed as the time and place for said hearing, and that any and all persons interested in the said Mission buildings or having any information as to the condition of the said building and outbuildings connected therewith, or any part thereof, may present any facts and any papers, records, documents or other information substantiating the said persons' ideas as to the condition of said Mission buildings and outbuildings at the time when the Franciscan Fathers were in charge thereof, and that the Secretary and Archivist of this Commission give public notice of said time and place fixed for said hearing at least sixty days prior to the said time, in the following newspapers: The 'Sacramento Bee," "San Francisco Examiner," "Los Angeles Express," and the "Carmel-by-the-Sea Pine Cone," the said latter paper being the paper published in the county in which said Mission building was situated and in the town nearest the said Mission building.

AND IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that this Commission then and there hear and consider any information appertaining thereto which shall be brought before it to the end that it may establish accurate models of the said San Carlos Borromeo Mission with its outbuildings, and cause to be prepared plans and specifications sufficient in detail to enable the said Mission buildings and outbuildings to be restored as they were when the Franciscan Fathers were in charge thereof.

Dated August 19, 1919.
